ABSTRACT

The guide identifies approximately 100 anthropology source materials in the reference department of McLennan Library at McGill University. It was designd to help students doing anthropological research and to illustrate the variety of materials on social and cultural anthropology in the McLennan Library. Physical anthropolgy, linguistics, and archaeology are treated only insofar as they are covered in works of broad scope. Section I lists dictionaries and encyclopedias of anthropology and related fields. Section II identifies handbooks on anthropological theory and method as well as on regional and ethnic cultures. Sections III and IV present atlases, directories of anthropologists, and directories of research institutions, courses, museums, and libraries. Reviews of the literature are listed in section V, followed by current bibliographies and periodical indexes in section VI. Retrospective bibliographies categorized by region and by special subjects are named in section VII. The concluding two sections present theses and selected periodicals. Each entry gives information on title, period of publication, McLennan Library catalog and shelf numbers, issues contained in the library, and a brief description of each book's content and format. ANTHROPOLOGY: A STUDENT'S GUIDE TO REFERENCE SOURCES

This revised list of anthropology source materials concentrates on cultural and social anthropology. Physical anthropology, linguistics and archaeology are treated only insofar as they are covered in works of broad scope.

Within its parameters this list is by no means exhaustive, but it does introduce the major bibliographical tools for anthropological research. Specialized country or ethnic bibliographies are not listed here but they may be found by consulting the L.C. and Cutter subject catalogues. The regional and special subject bibliographies included are just a selection of research materials available.

Other bibliographies prepared by the Reference Department should be used in conjunction with this list for more detailed source material:

Archaeology
Linguistics
Africa South of the Sahara
Indians and Eskimos of Canada
Caribbean
East Asia
Folklore
Indian Sub-Continent
Latin American Studies
Polar Regions
Sociology
Geography

The Government Documents collection is a good source for local statistics and governmental publications. This material is not usually noted in the McGill Union Catalogue; readers should go directly to the Government Documents Department to request assistance.

The University Map Collection in the Geography Department is another source for material of use to anthropological research. The librarian there will help you to locate thematic maps relevant to your geographical area of study.

The Centre for Northern Studies and Research at 1020 Pine Ave. W. maintains a non-circulating collection of monographs, serials and government publications on polar studies especially for the Canadian North. This material is not currently represented in the McGill Union Catalogue. A librarian is available to assist you at the Centre.

For studies on costume and modes of dress or adornment consult the Blackader-Lauterman Library of Art and Architecture.

The Human Relations Area Files, a collection of data for cross-cultural study analyzed from major ethnographic sources, is maintained on microform by the Bibliothèque des sciences sociales, Université de Montréal. Murdock's Outline of World Cultures and Outline of Cultural Materials mentioned in section II.B of this guide will introduce you to the arrangement and contents of the files.

Not all locations have been indicated for titles cited in this bibliography. For additional locations consult the McGill Union Catalogue.

Reference librarians will be pleased to provide any assistance you may need in using this guide and the materials listed in it or in locating further information.

This bibliography was compiled by Suzy M. Slavin, Reference Librarian, McLennan Library.
